For 1890.

During 1890 The Century Magaz'n (whose recent successes have included the famous "War Papers," the Lincoln History and George Kennan's series on "Siberia and the Exile System") will publish the long-looked-for Autobiography of Joseph Jefferson, whose "Rip van Winkle" has made his name a bousehold word. No more interesting record of life upon the stage could be laid befor the public. Mr. Jefferson is the fourth in a generation of actors, and, with his the public. Mr. Jefferson is the fourth in a generation of actors, and, with his children and grandchildren, there are six generations of actors among the Jeffersons. His story of the early days of the American stage, when, as a boy, traveling in his father's company, they would settle down for a season in a Western town, playing in their own exten porized theater,—the particulars of the creation of his famous "Rip van Winkle," how he acted "Ticket-of-Leave Man" before an andience of that class in Australia, etc..—all this, enriched with illustrations and portraits of contemporary actors and actresses, and with anecdotes, will form one of the most delightful serials The Century has ever printed.
